Dear Bill;

I envy you on your Mediterranean cruise with Adlai and your respective families and friends.

I have noted your letter to [redacted] enclosed with your note to me of July 10, and I was particularly interested in [redacted]

When you get back from your cruise, give me a call and I will see if there is anything I can do at that time to advance the visa matter. I doubt,
however, my influence on the authorities immediately
concerned at the other end.

Sincerely,

Dear Allen:

STAT [REDACTED] I am seeking assistance wherever I can get it in my pursuit of a visa for Peking. The Chinese experts in London, with whom I visited last week, think that the Chinese may be greatly interested in original photographs and pictures from the Britannica, as well as other things we have to offer.

Why would it not be suitable for Ambassador Beam to put me on his agenda? We can find no responsible Chinese scholar who has definite information that the Chinese are preparing an encyclopaedia, but they are in process of developing a vast encyclopaedic type dictionary. And Ambassador Menshikov told me that the possibility of an encyclopaedia should not be excluded.

I am on a Mediterranean cruise with Governor Stevenson and our two oldest sons and daughters-in-law and friends. Last night we were speaking warmly of you and of the remarkable job of leadership you are providing.

Sincerely,

William Benton
